ANEMONES cousins to the RANUNCULUS

The Anemone is the fitting team-mate of the Ranunculus and is planted at the same time. The color scheme is altogether different, as it adds the lacking blue, lavender and purple shades as well as vivid reds and white. The large cushion of black stamen offers a splendid contrast to their rich colors. They have the same superb keeping and cutting qualities as their cousin the Ranunculus. The "De Caen" type are single with flowers often 4 inches in diameter. See color plate on cover. The "St. Brigid" strain are double or semi-double. See color plate page 9.

Anemone Culture

In mild winter climates plant in the fall for late fall or winter bloom. Finer flowers result by blooming them in the cool part of the year. Later plantings can be made as long as bloom is not thrown into too warm weather. Soak the bulb for just a short time in cold water and plant in full sun with the point down. The top is rough where the old foliage was last year. Plant one to two inches deep according to size of bulb and do not water too much until they come up—In heavy soils an individual sand base for each bulb is recommended. Space bulbs 6 inches apart each way, 100 bulbs will plant an area 5x6 feet.

ARUM (Black Calla)

Pictum—An odorless dwarf calla with deep purple maroon blossoms. Fine for pots or garden. Plant in the fall, 3 inches deep in partial shade. Extra large bulb of this rare specie, special, 50c each. postage, 10c.
